SGC SOP CHAPTER 1 Rifle Range

For safety purposes the rifle range firing line has red strobe lights to indicate when the range is cold, and people are down range. There are two strobes located above the outside shooting positions and one strobe located in the shooting shack. The switch to activate the strobes is located on the outside wall of the shooting shack, to left of the door to the shack. No firearms may be handled/ touched when the cold range lights are on. Anyone caught handling firearms when lights are on will be given a one-time warning and have their membership card hole punched. If caught again, their membership will be suspended for the remainder of the calendar year. Before turning off the lights, positively verify no one is downrange by driving out the target access road if necessary.
